

Pacific Northwest Ski Association

A Division of USSA

---

Parental Code of Conduct

Adopted May 31, 2009

All athletes, coaches, and alpine officials who are members of PNSA and USSA are subject to codes of conduct. Within the code of conduct, membership and participation is a privilege and not a right. The following represents the PNSA's Parental Code of Conduct.

▲ Parents, guardians, and others who have athletes competing in PNSA sanctioned events are expected and required to conduct themselves in a sportsman like manner. Adults are expected to act as role models for children.

▲ Sportsman like conduct includes, but is not limited to, respect for all athletes, alpine officials, volunteers, resort employees, other skiers and snowboarding individuals.

▲ Parents and others are highly encouraged to volunteer to help a race organization. Parents are expected to familiarize themselves with the rules of the sport.

▲ Parents and others are expected to refrain from the use of profane or abusive language or disruptive behavior. PNSA and the race organization reserve the right to exclude parents from the race venue, including the competition arena.